Practice Exam - 70-480: Programming in HTML5 with JavaScript and CSS3

Modality: On Demand

Duration: 30 Min

About this Exam:

Applicants are developers with minimum one year of work experience designing HTML in an event-driven, object-based programming paradigm and important business reasoning for a wide range of app kinds, hardware, and software platforms utilizing JS.

Targeted Audience:

- Proficient developers having a year of programming experience and are interested in building applications using JS and CSS3 HTML5 (either MS Windows Store Applications for MS Windows 8 or Web applications)

Pre-requisites:

Candidates should have understanding of the following:

- At least 3 months of experience in creating Web apps, including but not limited to writing simple JS code
- A month experience in developing MS Windows client apps
- A month experience in using MS Visual Studio 2010 or 2012
- Managing events and program flow
- Asynchronous programming
- Validating data and functioning with data collections such as JQuery
- Handling exceptions and errors
- Arrays and collections
- Working with operators, expressions, and variables
- Working with methods and prototypes
- Decision statements
- Iteration statements

Certifications:

70-480 examination is one of three necessary examinations to acquire MCSA: Web Applications certification. Another necessary examinations to earn acquire certification are 70-483 and 70-486.

Recommended Prerequisite Courses:

None